

Conan and his companions are mercenaries in the pay of the king of Iranistan. They came to strengthen the ranks of this motley army of conscripts and royal guards. The Iranistanian military is marching against one of its own cities across the desert to the northeast. The governor of the city of Kushaf, for unknown reasons, rebelled against his king.

The governor of Kushaf will not suffer the wrath of his overlord, a more dire fate has struck him and his guard, they have come to swell the ranks of the legion of the living dead controlled by Natohk the necromancer. The devouring ambition of the sorcerer cannot be satisfied with a city or even a country, his demonic army will spread inexorably, sowing terror and destruction.
